Wisdom to Survive eBook to Benefit Amachi Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, PA... Amachi Pittsburgh is proud to announce that proceeds from the new eBook Wisdom to Survive: 30 Messages to Help You Get Through the Month by Pittsburgh author Julius Boatwright will benefit Amachi Pittsburgh throughout October and November 2014.

Mr. Boatwright created the crowdfunding initiative WRITE TO GIVE to help raise funds for non-profit organizations, entrepreneurs and schools in his community. 100% of the proceeds from each download of the Wisdom to Survive eBook on Amazon, Barnes & Noble, iTunes, and Kobo in the months of October and November will be donated to Amachi Pittsburgh. The cost of the download is only $0.99. Those wishing to support Amachi Pittsburgh and enjoy the 30 inspirational writings from Mr. Boatwright need only download the eBook in their preferred version and Mr. Boatwright will make the donation. There are no additional coupons or steps to participate.

“We felt so blessed when Julius approached us and offered his support to Amachi Pittsburgh,” said Anna Hollis, Executive Director. “It’s such a simple way for people to support our programs and in return they receive a wonderful eBook to enjoy. It’s win, win.”

About Wisdom to Survive and Julius Boatwright

Mr. Boatwright’s mission is to inspire, enlighten, and empower people through writing. He started BoatWritesBooks, LLC to self-publish inspirational books, releasing Jewels of Inspiration & Wisdom in 2011 and the eBook series Wisdom to Survive in September of 2014. Another eBook series, Motivation, will be released on December 1, 2014.

A native of Farrell, PA, Mr. Boatwright came to Pittsburgh to pursue higher education at the University of Pittsburgh. He currently holds a Bachelor of Arts in Communications and English Writing and a Master of Social Work with a concentration in Social Administration.

About Amachi Pittsburgh

Amachi Pittsburgh was established in 2003 and adapted from the national, evidence-based program model developed by Rev. Dr. Wilson Goode, Sr. of Philadelphia. Amachi Pittsburgh empowers young minds to overcome the challenges of parental incarceration, and fulfill their God-given purpose. Nationally recognized and award winning, Amachi Pittsburgh is the only organization in the greater Pittsburgh area with a distinct focus on children of prisoners promise, a population described by the U.S. Department of Justice as “the most at-risk for future delinquency and/or adult incarceration”.
